Urgent Help Needed— We Need Bad Death Data

This is probably the single most important thing we can do right now!

A major reason that the Patient Comfort and Control Act (PCCA) did not get a hearing during this last legislative session is because of opposition from the Arizona Medical Association (ARMA).

The only way to influence ARMA is to document the need for reform. It is critical that we find and document cases of “bad death” here in Arizona. We are therefore turning to you for help. If you, or someone you know, has any information about “bad death” cases, please let us know.

We are in the very favorable position of being able to approach ARMA directly and turn them around on this issue! It is most important that we have details of cases of bad deaths! Information given will not be publicly released without prior consent.

If you can help, please tell us about the case and answer these questions:

1. Name of deceased?
2. What is your description of the continuing problem until death?
3. What are the names and contact information of others involved (caregivers, medical personnel, family, etc.)?
4. What are all relevant dates: diagnosis, procedures, death?
5. What are the names of physician(s) involved?
6. Can you supply copies of supporting documents such as living will or durable power of attorney, medical records, etc.?
7. If the PCCA had been adopted, do you believe the experience you are reporting would have been different and if so, how?

Those of you with such information, please get it to John Abraham at (520) 577-2245 as soon as possible. Thank you for your assistance!

Now available for you or your group!

“How to Be a Very, Very Good Advocate!”

End of Life Choices Arizona has produced a play: “How to Be a Very, Very Good Advocate!” which is now available in DVD or VHS format.

Part of preparing for the inevitable end is to see to it that your wishes are honored. Having an “Advocate” or “Surrogate” or “Proxy” is vital. You must select someone to speak for you when you can not.

This video is a fresh way to teach others how to be a better advocate. Viewers learn what to look for in an advocate, and what to tell your advocate about how you want to be treated should you be in a health care facility. It is must viewing for anyone who does not want his/her life prolonged with heroic measures.

This play may be purchased for a donation of $20 with check made out to: “End of Life Choices Arizona” or “EOL AZ.” Mail to: John Abraham, 207 N. Maguire Avenue, Suite #111, Tucson, AZ 85710.

Questions: email john@choicesarizona.org or call (520) 577-2245. Please be sure to specify whether you want DVD or VHS format. Run time is 28:08.

Birth of living will

The popularity of living wills grew out of the Missouri case of Nancy Cruzan, who was 24 in 1983 when a car accident left her in a persistent vegetative state. Cruzan’s parents filed a lawsuit seeking an end to the feeding tube that kept her alive.

After a long court battle, a Missouri judge who heard testimony from people who knew Cruzan ruled she would not have wanted to be kept alive in a vegetative state and ordered her feeding tube removed. Cruzan died in December 1990, 12 days after her parents won the right to remove the tube.

The Cruzan case led Congress to pass the Patient Self-Determination Act, co-sponsored by then Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan. The law required hospitals and nursing homes to inform patients of their right to prepare living wills and other advance directives concerning health care.

Charles Sabatino, an attorney and assistant director of the American Bar Association’s Commission on Law and Aging, uses this comparison in advising clients to steer clear of living wills: “You can’t provide cookbook directions. Dying is too complicated, and none of us has a crystal ball to tell us what we will encounter far down the road.” ■

This Fall you will receive a mailing asking for your financial assistance. This is our only annual fundraising effort. Please read the mailing carefully and give generously.

END OF LIFE
CHOICES ★ ARIZONA

Quality of Death: Assessing the Importance Placed on End of Life Treatment in the Intensive Care Unit

CONTEXT: The value of good end of life (EOL) care could be underestimated if its effects are assessed using the standard metric of quality-adjusted survival, especially if the time horizon is limited to the duration of the EOL care. This issue is particularly problematic in the intensive-care unit (ICU) where death is frequent, care is difficult, and costs are high.

OBJECTIVES: The objectives of this study were to test whether people would trade healthy life expectancy for better EOL care, to understand how much life expectancy they would trade relative to domains of good care, and to determine the association of respondent characteristics to time traded.

DESIGN AND SUBJECTS: We used a computerized survey instrument describing hypothetical patient experiences in the ICU used to assess attitudes of a general population sample (n = 104) recruited in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

MEASURES: We used life expectancy traded (from a baseline of 80 healthy years followed by a 1-month fatal ICU stay) for improving ICU care in 4 domains: pain and discomfort, daily surroundings, treatment decisions, and family support.

RESULTS: Three fourths of respondents (n = 78) were prepared to shorten healthy life for better EOL care. Median time traded in individual domains ranged from 7.2 to 7.7 months overall and 9.6 to 11.4 months when restricted to those willing to trade. Median time traded for improvement in all domains was 8.3 months overall and 24.0 months by those willing to trade. In multivariable analyses, respondents who were older, nonwhite, or had children traded significantly less time, whereas those who did not perceive the ICU to be a caring environment traded more time.

CONCLUSIONS: Good EOL care is highly valued, both in terms of medical and nonmedical domains, as suggested by previous work and confirmed by our data showing respondents trading quantities of healthy life several times longer than the duration of the EOL period itself. The considerable interperson variation highlights the importance of soliciting individual preferences about EOL care.

Severy Partridge, of Flagstaff, AZ chapter, has been setting up a “Choices” information table in front of the Main Library two mornings a week, for 2 hours each time, through the month of July. She’ll continue to do this through August and maybe September.

The response has been pretty encouraging. At least half a dozen brochures were handed out each time; the website, as well as hand-outs, were given to people. Two Advance Directives sold (many asked about them but had no money or didn’t want to pay for them). Most people have heard of Hemlock Society and approved of what they are doing. Several took meeting flyers. Several also said they don’t go to meetings. Generally, there was more energy and interest than Severy gets at meetings!

Dignified death plans

quoted an additional $200 fee to pick up my father’s body on Sunday although he found another place at his original price.

Also, choose a crematorium close to you so it’s easy to stop by and fill out necessary papers.

Veterans

Did you know that all veterans are entitled to a free burial in a national cemetery as well as a grave marker? Good thing to consider if your decedent qualifies.

Bequeath body to science

Yet another inexpensive option, many medical schools value a body for teaching or research purposes and will pay to pick up and eventually dispose of the body. You can even ask for the ashes to be returned to you once the body is cremated.

Celebrate life

As for service, a funeral just prior to burial can cost big bucks. But a memorial service, later on, won’t set you back so much. You can hold something distinguished and personal at home, or even opt for a wake to celebrate the decedent’s life.

As such, when it comes to dealing with the death of a loved one, remember that there are two issues. The first is the timely disposition of the body, and the second is commemorating the person’s life.

If you can separate those two into different functions, you allow yourself both the opportunity to save money and more time to plan something very special. ■

Give to End of Life Choices Arizona instead of the IRS!

Did you know that you can increase your giving power up to 10 times the dollar amount (and at no extra cost to you) just by establishing the proper legal and financial tools to protect your estate? And you don't need to be rich to participate in planned giving. Please read on!

We ask you to consider making a difference for the long-term future of End of Life Choices Arizona. The very first chapter in the country (ours in Tucson) was started in 1983, followed by the creation of the statewide organization in 1997. This was accomplished with 100% volunteer labor and a bare-bones survival budget. Now we've got momentum, are pursuing several costly efforts, and have grown beyond the point where we can function solely on volunteer labor. We need to become self-sufficient for the long haul.

End of Life Choices Arizona/Fifth Freedom Foundation accept a variety of planned giving options, including bequests and other testamentary gifts. We also offer ways for you to receive income from your gift, and other planned giving options. Explore how you can help End of Life Choices Arizona while making sound financial plans for yourself.

Unrestricted bequests enable End of Life Choices Arizona and Fifth Freedom Foundation to direct your gift to an area of our organization where it will have the most impact; however, you may also specify the area you would like to support by making a restricted bequest. Whichever you choose, your bequest may be made in a variety of forms arranged with professional help.

In order to maintain and increase the viability and energy of our continuing work, we ask you to seriously consider a bequest or other planned giving option to provide for our future. To learn more about planned giving or donations, please contact us at 1-877-535-3600 (toll free), 520-577-2245 (Tucson), 520-751-1310 (fax), or email giving@choicesarizona.org. Thank you for your support! ■

Our Statement of Principles

A primary objective of End of Life Choices Arizona is to encourage dialogue concerning choices at the end of life. To initiate this exchange of ideas, we have developed a Statement of Principles. This is a proclamation communicating our mission and why we fight for the empowerment of people to preserve the dignity of their life. The Statement advocates the right of each of us to make final decisions about our medical care, determine our end of life options, and preserve, under law, our dignity at the end.

- We support laws which ensure that, in the event of a terminal illness, our own deeply held beliefs will determine our end of life choices.
- We believe every American should execute advance directives to guarantee control of health care decisions at the end of life.
- We support laws that preserve our dignity when we have reached the end of life by empowering us to direct our own end of life care.

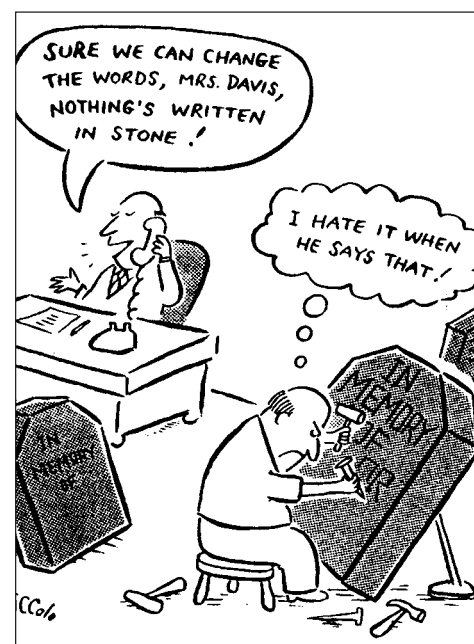

Ideas That Work

(a new, regular, feature)

- ✓ Does your chapter have a phone tree yet?
- ✓ If your group/chapter meets in a church or other institution, ask that institution to add our website as a link on their website.
- ✓ Find Health Fairs in your community to get involved with for exposure. Arrange to join them and set up a display about EOLC AZ and your chapter.
- ✓ When everyone is responsible, no one is responsible—designate individuals. Delegate and assign specific tasks to specific individuals (i.e. X brings cookies to the meeting; X signs in all the meeting attendees; X makes sure the library keeps copies of and displays our brochure and newsletter; X will call to arrange for the chapter leader to speak to the Rotary Club, etc.).
